EUROPEAN HOLOCAUST RESEARCH INFRASTRUCTURE

MODERN, DEMOCRATIC EUROPE DEVELOPED OUT OF THE ASHES OF AUSCHWITZ. It is therefore crucial that research into the Holocaust continues to progress. Only thus can our history's darkest chapter be reread and refined by new generations. For Europeans to understand this shared past, this endeavour must transcend national borders.

THE EUROPEAN HOLOCAUST RESEARCH INFRASTRUCTURE (EHRI) IS AN INTERNATIONAL INFRASTRUCTURE SECURING HOLOCAUST RESEARCH, COMMEMORATION AND EDUCATION ON A TRANS-NATIONAL LEVEL.

One of its main challenges is the wide dispersal of sources and expertise across many institutions. EHRI overcomes such fragmentation by connecting sources, institutions and people. The EHRI PORTAL enables online access to information about Holocaust sources, no matter where they are located. The CONNY KRISTEL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME gives researchers access to the resources of the world's twenty leading Holocaust archives. EHRI's extensive PROGRAMME OF NETWORKING AND TRAINING brings people together. Last but not least, EHRI promotes INNOVATIVE TOOLS for the digital transformation of Holocaust research.

Although EHRI's impact is primarily scientific, the infrastructure also advances a wider social and political agenda. The recent rise of antisemitism, xenophobia and aggressive nationalisms in Europe and beyond demonstrate that HOLOCAUST RESEARCH IS NEVER A PURELY ACADEMIC CONCERN, BUT A PREREQUISITE FOR OPEN AND NON-DISCRIMINATORY SOCIETIES ACROSS EUROPE AND BEYOND.

EHRI is funded by the EU
