Early Attempts at the Historical Documentation of the Holocaust

Budapest, 27.-28. November 2012, Holocaust Memorial Centre (Holokauszt Emlékközpont, www.hdke.hu)

International workshop within the framework of the European Holocaust Research Infrastructure (EHRI)

The EHRI workshop, which aimed to reconstruct the activities of the Jewish post-war documentation projects and to place them into a comparative context, was a vivid illustration that the history of archival collections can be anything but boring.

New Look EHRI Website

We are very pleased to announce that EHRI will be welcoming 2013 with a brand new website. Now that the project is halfway through, we thought the website needed a more informative and attractive design that was better suited to the current content. The website address and login codes for the Community Hub will stay the same and you will still be able to find all the present information, news and profiles alongside the new features.

EHRI Timeline

Behind the scenes of EHRI a team of professionals is working hard to develop what is going to be EHRI's main achievement: an online portal that will give access to now dispersed Holocaust resources and a Virtual Research Environment that will encourage advanced and collaborative research.

EHRI now has 700 test records in a database that contains harvested archival collections descriptions about the Holocaust.

People in EHRI: Ewa Mork

Head of Documentation at the Center for the Study of the Holocaust and Religious Minorities in Oslo (HL-senteret), Norway

Member of EHRI Work Package 18

HL-senteret is probably the youngest institution among the EHRI affiliates. The creation of the center was a result of a year-long process involving the restitution of property and assets confiscated from the Norwegian Jews during the Second World War.
